PROBE WORKING HOURS CHILDREN IN PINE PLANTS

Large numbers of children under 15 years of age who have been working at the pineapple canneries are receiving the attention of the humane society. Judge Wm. Heen is said to have given the matter his personal attention and declared that the hours that the children worked were too long.

Small boys under 15 years of age will no longer be allowed to work on the milk wagons at night. This action follows an investigation which was made by the humane society.

In its July report, the humane society shows a continuation of its work as usual in spite of the summer. A Portuguese man, a Portuguese girl and a white man were aided during the month. Animal cases include 27 instances when check reins were removed, three cases of overloading, one of a Chinaman who was found driving a lame horse and was fined $20, and others, making 193 in all.

ARGENTINE HAS TO BUY SUGAR

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 13.—The Argentine congress has passed the law authorizing the executive to purchase sugar abroad and import it free of duty, as a means of relieving the serious shortage caused by the failure of the Argentine crop and reducing the present excessively high prices.

As submitted to congress the law proposed to admit 40,000 tons free, it being estimated that the importation of this amount, in conjunction with the application of the recent decree authorizing seizure of the stocks held in warehouses here, would be sufficient to bring down the wholesale price of refined to 8½ cents a pound.

This feature of the bill was at first rejected by the senate, but upon reconsideration, in view of the increasing seriousness of the situation, the desired authority has not only been granted, but the amount to be imported under suspension of duties has been increased to 50,000 tons.

The government makes known that it has already negotiated for the purchase of 20,000 tons from Brazilian producers, and of 2,000 tons in Peru, and is seeking to arrange for the purchase of the remaining 28,000 tons in the United States.

STORK COMPANY MEETS SETBACKS BUT BUSINESS WILL BE PUSHED

F. P. Rosecrans of Maui Back From Trip of Investigation to Mainland, Declares There is Absolutely Nothing Crooked in Affairs of Company

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondent.)
WAILUKU, Aug. 1.—The Stork company is a long way from being dead. It has had to meet some unexpected setbacks, but these have about been overcome and the business will be pushed. The board of directors has just held a meeting at which it made a report of my investigations while on the mainland. There is nothing in most of the wild rumors current about the affairs of the company.

This was in brief the statement of F. P. Rosecrans, manager of Maui store, and one of the directors of the Stork System of Savings and Supply Company, Limited, who returned last Friday from a trip to the mainland, during which he thoroughly went into the affairs of the Stork company and its antecedents.

It has been currently known on Maui for some months that the affairs of the company had been badly shaken up by the withdrawal of H. F. Proctor, chief promoter of the company, who with C. B. Hall and J. J. Correll had entered into a contract to push the business on the mainland for a period of 5 years on an even division of profits basis. The company was organized and incorporated last winter with capital of $150,000, all paid in, and with some 125 shareholders, practically all Maui people. Messrs. Proctor, Hall and Correll went to the mainland last spring, but shortly after reaching there Proctor is alleged to have severed his connection with the concern, leaving Hall and Correll to swing it alone. They went first to Seattle, but were delayed for weeks in getting their paraphernalia from Denver. The Northwest coast, according to Mr. Rosecrans, was feeling the effects of the war boom less than any other part of the United States, and the weather was also against the enterprise. When Mr. Rosecrans was there the headquarters had been moved back to Denver again, and Messrs. Hall and Correll expected to soon have things moving ahead again.

Nothing Crooked
"I made it my business to run down all suggestions that Mr. Proctor or anyone else had been crooked in the matter of promoting the company," said Mr. Rosecrans, "and to the end I traced things back to their origin in Leavenworth, Kan. The copyrights and other titles which the company bought are all bona fide. There is nothing wrong except that Mr. Proctor broke his contract and there is nothing legally wrong in that."

"But it handicapped Charlie and Jim (Hall and Correll). They possibly made a mistake in leaving Colorado, where the scheme was known and had been established, and taking it into an entirely new part of the country. They were also handicapped for lack of working capital."

What Company Is
The Maui people who organized the company paid $100,000 for the copyrights for a scheme of getting paid for furnishing new customers to retail merchants and to banks. It is something on the plan of a well-known trading stamp idea. The company brought a family as a new customer to a merchant. For all purchases the customer received script (furnished by the company) to value of 5 per cent of the purchase. This script was accepted by a bank as cash, credited to a child as a savings account, drawing 1 per cent interest, and not removable from the bank till the child became 15 years of age. At the same time the bank charged the merchant's account with the amount. For the privilege of getting this new account, the merchant paid the company 75 cents and the bank 50 cents. The plan is so cleverly drawn as to become practically automatic after it is started, and the copyrights on forms and the idea is said to insure the company of getting its profit.

Mr. Proctor, a mailman, who brought the plan to the islands in connection with C. B. Hall of Honolulu, claimed to have bought the full rights to it for $125,000 from the originators, who had it in successful operation in about 16 Colorado cities. He kept $25,000 of the stock in the new company as his share for floating the enterprise, and it is understood disposed of most of it before leaving the territory.

BRITISH ACTION ON SUGAR STIRS
JAMAICAN HOPES
Planters Feel That Intention
To Encourage Producer
Will Help Them

The recent action of the British government in advancing funds to help the development of beet sugar production in Great Britain, according to the International Sugar Journal, has served to stimulate the sugar plants of the British West Indies to renewed efforts for a further expansion of the British West Indian sugar industry. The securing of government aid has long been agitated as the only means of restoring the once flourishing sugar industry of British West Indies to something like its former prosperity, says Facts About Sugar.

Particularly in Jamaica, where the planters have been struggling to maintain the industry in the face of eighty years of chronic depression, the action of the home government has been received as a very hopeful sign, according to advices received in London. It is felt that, if the policy of encouraging the production of a supply of sugar sufficient for British needs within the empire is to be adopted, the West Indies colonies should be among the first to benefit by it, since it has been demonstrated in the past that they are admirably adapted to cane growing.

This, however, is not the only recent development which has served to revive the Jamaican planters' hopes. The International Sugar Journal also points out that the government of the colony itself has under consideration a plan for encouraging the revival of the industry by advancing assistance for the erection of central sugar factories. The plan is being advanced with the strong support of Sir Francis Watts, imperial commissioner of agriculture for the West Indies, who has been touring the island and meeting the planters of the various parishes with a view to ascertaining the possibilities of such a scheme.

OUTRIGGER CORAL PILE KEEPS ON INCREASING

"The pile of coral in front of the Outrigger Club is increasing in size, not decreasing," declared H. B. Campbell, president of the club, this morning.

"Not satisfied to stop work when the day set aside for the work was over, members of the club with an excellent spirit of cooperativeness, have continued to take coral out of the beach in front of the club," insisted Mr. Campbell.

Reports that the small boys of the club had taken to throwing the pieces of dead coral piled on the beach, the result of the combined efforts of the club to clear the coral out of their swimming place, back into the water from when it came, were declared untrue.
